WASHINGTON (AP) — A compromise bill to authorize 1 billion dollars worth of water projects has been passed by a Senate-House conference committee and today a report of the agreement on the way to the two chambers. A number of Arkansas projects are listed in the bill. President Eisenhower vetoed similar measures in 1956 and earlier this year. The conference group straightened out comparatively minor differences in House and Senate versions of the bill by accepting almost intact the Senate presentation. No actual funds are provided by the bill. Congress has to appropriate the necessary money before construction on the 161 projects can be started. The Senate version, which was followed by the conferees, cut out a provision for installation of Penstock or other power facilities at Lone Rock Reservoir in Arkansas. Both the House and Senate bills agreed on these Arkansas projects: White River Basin, 57 million dollars; White River backwater project, $238,000; St. Francis Basin, $55,774,000; Millwood Reservoir system, $53,235,000; and Beaufort and Tensas Rivers projects, $1,212,000.

Plenty of Moisture for Most of State

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Most crops in Arkansas now have plenty of moisture because of last week's rains, the federal-state Crop Reporting Service said today. It reported that the cotton crop showed improvement and the majority of fields are not grassy. The status of some other crops: Rice is growing well in all areas, with some older rice being fertilized. Soybeans are coming up rapidly but weeds are becoming a problem everywhere the crop is grown. Heavy movement of tomatoes is being slowed by cool, rainy weather in the south. A bumper peach crop is expected. The Crop Reporting Service said the 1958 forecast is for 2,300,000 bushels — highest since 1945.

Words Flare in Adams-Goldfine Investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Goldfine-Adams investigation exploded into an angry row today climaxed by dismissal of a former Securities and Exchange Commission chairman from the witness stand. J. Sinclair Armstrong, SEC chairman in 1955-57 and now an assistant secretary of the Navy, tangled from the outset with Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.) of the House subcommittee digging into SEC handling of cases involving Bernard Goldfine, a Boston industrialist.

The Congressmen want to know whether SEC pulled its punches and whether it was influenced by Sherman Adams, top aide in President Eisenhower and a close friend of Goldfine. "I've been outraged" at allegations that SEC people "could possibly be influenced by anybody," Armstrong hollered to the congressmen.

Harris asked the former SEC chief to step aside and not resume the witness stand until Harris returned from another committee meeting the congressman was about to attend. He said he had some questions to ask personally.

Armstrong kept right on. "I've been waiting for two years to make this statement," he said in a rising voice.

"You've been before this committee at the beginning of every Congress," shot back Harris.

"Well, what have we talked about," asked Armstrong.

Banging his gavel, Harris sent Armstrong from the witness chair. The congressman then turned to some secondary witnesses.

There were indications the subcommittee would deal gingerly with a question that bobbed up Tuesday — whether Goldfine, bested favors on federal judges.

Subpoenas Sought for NAACP Group

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett today planned to file depositions aimed at obtaining court subpoenas for leaders of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People to testify on activities on the group in Arkansas.

Bennett said last night he would ask that Mrs. L. C. Bates, state president of the NAACP, and Wiley Branton, a Pine Bluff attorney for the organization, be brought into Pulaski Circuit Court to answer questions about the NAACP's legal defense fund.

The attorney general said he had started other proceedings to make Thurgood Marshall of New York chief counsel of the NAACP testify on the issue.

Bennett has a suit pending in Pulaski Circuit Court which seeks to keep the fund and the NAACP from practicing law as corporations in Arkansas.

Branton could not be reached for comment on Bennett's subpoena. Mrs. Bates said she had nothing to say about it immediately. Earlier yesterday, Bennett charged in a speech at Forrest City that an NAACP "task force" surveyed the public attitude toward school integration in 20 Arkansas cities in 1954-55.

"Little Rock was selected as the first target of these outside meddling," Bennett told the Forrest City Rotary Club. "The other 19 cities were to follow and Arkansas was supposed to have been the pilot state for destruction."

He listed the 19 cities as Batesville, Blytheville, Crossett, DeWitt, Eureka, Fort Smith, Hamlet, Helena, Hot Springs, Hoxie, McGehee, Osceola, Pine Bluff, Prescott, Texarkana, Walnut Ridge, West Memphis and Wilmar. Fort Smith, Hot Springs, Hoxie and Little Rock were integrated in varying degrees but all on a token basis. Mrs. Bates had this comment on Bennett's speech at Forrest City: "I read his speech in the paper. It sounds ridiculous to me. The most ridiculous statement I've ever heard of another person's making is to intimidate the NAACP."

1,000 Russians Demonstrate at U.S. Embassy

By ROY ESSOVAN

MOSCOW (AP) — A crowd of more than 1,000 Russians, some angrily shaking their fists and shouting foul epithets, demonstrated today at the U.S. Embassy.

About 150 Soviet policemen kept the crowd under control. One screaming Russian hurled a stone through an open window but there was no damage.

U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson told reporters he planned no protest because "under our system of government we do not object to peaceful assembly and demonstrations."

The crowd included some youths in army uniforms. The Russians converged on the building in what clearly was a well-planned demonstration in retaliation for demonstrations by Hungarian refugees last weekend at the Soviet U.N. offices in New York.

"Down with provocateurs," read placards in both Russian and English languages.

Several Russians in military uniforms were among the crowd. About 25 Soviet policemen held back the demonstrators as they surged across the sidewalk toward the 10-story embassy building.

The embassy staff had made hurried preparation for the demonstration after Moscow newspapers for the first time published today accounts of the demonstrations in New York protesting the execution of Imre Nagy.

Kiwanis Club Hears Warden of U.S. Prison

Ninety-seven percent of all persons committed to state and federal prisons are "some day" returned to society, J. O. Kearney, Warden of the Federal Correctional Institution, Texarkana, told the Hope Kiwanis club at its luncheon meeting Tuesday.

"Therefore, one of the big problems facing prison authorities as well as the community where the inmate will return, is to prepare the returnee mentally, physically and morally for the resumption of normal life. The Texarkana prison is classified as a medium security institution and most of the inmates are first offenders and other persons with not too long a crime record.

"A program of rehabilitation which includes 25 occupational trades, as well as educational and religious instruction is given to inmates. Every person is treated fair, but strict. The morale of the institution is high. There have been no disturbances inside the prison in the past four years.

"Inmates of the prison are kept informed of world events, and last year about $300,000 was made up among the prisoners and donated to the Texarkana Community Chest. A total of 350 men are volunteer good donors, much of the blood being used by Texarkana hospitals," Warden Kearney pointed out.

Other remarks left with the Kiwanians were: Looking a man up doesn't always cure his crime tendency. A former Boy Scout is a very rare person to find in prison. "and the danger point is the first six months of adjustment after an inmate is released from prison. He either adjusts himself, or he doesn't."

Mexico Divorce Suit by Mail Ruled Invalid

The Hempstead Chancery Court yesterday took on an international hue when it quashed a Hope resident from attempting to secure a Mexican divorce by mail.

Court records show that the man involved had secured an attorney by correspondence in Mexico and had caused a suit to be filed in the State of Chihuahua, Mexico against his wife. She ignored the Mexican suit and in turn sued her husband in the local court for child maintenance and for an injunction to prevent him from further prosecuting the case in Mexico against her. Both parties reside in Hope. The Hempstead Chancery Court, with Judge James H. Pinkston presiding, made a finding that the parties were bona fide residents of this county and not of Mexico and that the Mexican Court under the circumstances was without jurisdiction to grant any relief to the man. He was ordered to make certain payments towards the support of his children, and was enjoined from pursuing his Mexican litigation.

Fighting Breaks Out as Lebanon Asks UN for an Emergency Force

Appeals Court Get Central High Case

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The U. S. Court of Appeals here has received a motion to stay a District Court order delaying racial integration of Central High School at Little Rock, Ark., for 2½ years.

The motion arrived by mail and was accompanied by a notice of appeal from the ruling by U. S. Dist. Judge Harry J. Lemley at Little Rock.

If Judge Lemley's order is affirmed, Negro children who attended Central this past school year won't be back next fall.

Attorneys for the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People are fighting the judge's order. They claim that just because the city is "psychologically unready" for racial integration there is no basis for noncompliance with the "constitutional law of the United States."

Robert Tucker, clerk of the appellate court here, said he would send the motion for a stay to Chief Judge Archibald K. Gardner at his Huron, S. D., home.

The court is in recess for the summer. It is scheduled to reconvene the second week in September.

Ships Ram in N.Y. Harbor, Three Missing

NEW YORK (AP) — A Swedish freighter rammed an oil tanker in post-midnight darkness on the East River today. The resulting explosion turned the river into an inferno and sent flames leaping so high they set the Manhattan bridge afire. The tanker sank.

Three persons were reported missing — two from the tanker, one from the freighter. Thirty-seven others were hospitalized and 11 others escaped without serious injury.

Many plunged into the water, screaming for help and swam through flames to rescue boats. The fire on Manhattan Bridge did no great damage. Transit and vehicular traffic was halted for a time.

The surface of the river was covered by gasoline from the sunken tanker.

The menace of further explosion or fire was so great that the Coast Guard closed off the river to ships.

An urgent warning was issued against smoking in the area.

Gasoline accumulated along both shores in the vicinity of the crash.

Fire hoses were kept ready on all piers and wharves. Gasoline was in the waters of the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

A photographer for the New York Journal-American, William Finn, 52, collapsed and died of a heart attack while covering the disaster.

Many of those rescued were saved by a fireboat that daintily maneuvered alongside the flaming wrecks so that crewmen could leap aboard.

The leaping flames singed the bridge and set it afire briefly, burning high-tension wires underneath it. Thick smoke blacked out the span, causing its closing to both automobile and subway traffic for some time. It was reopened before dawn and apparently was not seriously damaged.

The blazing oil bathed the Manhattan and Brooklyn waterfronts in a brilliant light as thousands watched from piers and nearby buildings.

Dramatic and heroic incidents took place during the rescue operations.

Patrolman Richard Gazzola and a 16-year-old passer-by, Candido Santiago, dived into the river when they saw two seamen floundering 200 feet out. They held the summer aloft until a tug pulled them all aboard and landed them at a pier. All four were taken to a hospital.

The fireboat William J. Gaynor, first on the scene, rescued many of those aboard the Nebraska among them three women. One of the three was a 27-year-old radio operator, and the others were the wives of the first and second engineers of the Swedish ship.

The Gaynor host sailed through flaming oil slicks in the side of the burning Nebraska, dozens of crew members leaped from the Nebraska onto the fireboat. Eleven crewmen stayed aboard, however, and manned the ship after flames were brought under control. She was taken to berth at a pier.

The fireboat was damaged and its engine room flooded to waist level before it was docked.

It is scheduled for July 27 through August 4 and will be held in Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds simultaneously.

Government Wants to Seal Off Frontier

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Heavy firing broke out after Lebanon late today, shortly after the government announced it had asked for an armed U.N. emergency force to seal off the frontier.

President Camille Chamoun said he expected a big rebel push against his pro-Western government, but it was too soon to say whether this was it.

The heaviest firing was heard in Ghannak Ghannik, on the outskirts of the Busta section of Beirut where rebel forces under former Premier Saeb Salam are entrenched inside barricades.

Shooting broke out in the post office area at about the same time and firing erupted and bombs were exploded in Ashrafiah, the Christian quarter in the eastern part of the capital.

Machine guns, mortar fire, dynamite bombs and small arms fire could be heard as the rebels and security forces exchanged fire.

The fighting broke a long day of unusual calm in Beirut.

Premier Saeb Salam announced the request for a U.N. force to completely seal off Lebanon's frontiers with the Syrian province of President Nasser's United Arab Republic.

The request was handed to U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld, now winding up an on-the-spot survey of this little revolt-torn public.

President Camille Chamoun told a news conference the shelling of his forces from Syrian soil took place Tuesday in the presence of U.N. observers.

Faubus Calls in Bland to Aid Campaign

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — James L. Bland today resigned as administrator of the state Employment Security Division to become personal representative for Gov. Orval Faubus who is seeking a third term.

G. J. Hardwick, assistant administrator, has been placed in charge of the division, Bland said. Asked if he expected to be re-appointed after the election, Bland said: "The only announcement is my resignation."

The ESD operates under federal regulations which do not permit a federal employee to participate in a political race.

Several of Faubus' aides have gone off the state pay roll for the duration of the campaign. They include Arnold Sikos, chief assistant to the governor; Orville Choney, state Revenue Commissioner; and Claude Carpenter, attorney for the Public Service Commission.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Little Rock Classroom Teachers Association voted yesterday to ask for a 3.5 per cent increase in the school board's teacher salary policy.

Teachers and school officials have been unable to agree on salary raises for the coming school year. The board offered a $200 annual raise. The teachers asked for $400.

The teachers decided to ask the Arkansas Legislative Council, the Arkansas Education Association and the National Education Association to check into the dispute.

They voted to delay signing of their new contracts until they meet again July 10.

said that on the basis of ATT's 1955 traffic volume—which was used in the FCC study—the ordered adjustment would reduce the company's revenues by $5,500,000 a year.

FCC said an analysis of ATT's own figures showed it is earning "at least" 10.5 per cent on its investment in private lines.

The reduction is designed to bring the return rate down to 7.5 per cent.

Privately leased telephone circuits are widely used by government agencies, stockbrokers, banks, large industries, and others.

Secy. Benson Endorses Farm Measure

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson today gave a general endorsement to a farm bill approved yesterday by the Senate Agriculture Committee. The measure deals with cotton, corn, feed grains and rice.

Benson said in a formal statement he was pleased with the committee action and expressed hope the proposals would not be altered by amendments weakening their intent or adding to costs of administration. Otherwise, he said, they would not be acceptable.

This was in contrast to a news conference statement yesterday in which Benson sharply criticized an omnibus farm bill recently approved by the House Agriculture Committee and expected to be taken up by the House later this week or early next.

Benson said the Senate committee had given sincere and earnest consideration to workable legislation which is in the long-term interest of farmers.

But he described the House bill as an economic monstrosity and a political hedgehog of some measures proposed by the Eisenhower administration and some which, he declared, would be against the welfare of farmers.

Benson said provisions of the Senate bill eliminating acreage allotments on corn and widening the range of price supports was in line with administration recommendations.

Also substantially in line, he said, is the Senate rice proposal eliminating a provision of the price support law requiring that supports be raised as surpluses decline and widening the range of supports beginning in 1961.

Income Per Family Increases Slightly

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Census Bureau estimated today that the median family income of the United States last year was $4,971, up from $4,783 in 1956.

It said the 4 per cent rise probably represented no significant change in purchasing power for the average family since the cost of living advanced about as much.

Median income is the figure which divides all families into two equal groups, half earning more and half earning less.

Data gathered in March indicated that farm families had a 1957 median income of $2,490 compared with $5,232 for urban and rural nonfarm families, the bureau said.

The survey took into account earnings, dividends, rents and all other forms of income.

Local Team Is Winner Over College Nine

Folks who saw the College All-stars game last night at Legion field saw a real good contest in which the Hope group defeated the Henderson College nine 5 to 3.

Hope came from behind in the fifth inning and went on to win. Timely hits were turned in by Johnny Lingo, Wayne Johnson, Phil Jones and Jimmy Martin. It was only the second time the Arkadelphia boys had been beaten in two seasons.

Castoffs Who Play With the Cards Beam

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A couple of castoffs are beaming with happiness because they're getting to play regularly with the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Being able to play makes me much happier," said outfielder Curt Flood Tuesday night after he hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning to give the Cardinals a 2-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Cardinals' fourth consecutive triumph boosted them into second place in the National League, their high point of the season.

"This is the greatest," pitcher Phil Paine chimed in.

"I'm more happy than I ever was," he added after pitching two scoreless innings of relief to gain his fourth victory of the year.

Flood came up with Cincinnati last year from the Savannah club of the Class A South Atlantic League. He was traded during the winter to the Cardinals.

Since 1951, with time out for military service in 1952-53, Paine had been shuffled from the majors to the minors. Before this season started, Milwaukee asked waivers on Paine and the Cardinals picked him up.

Says Boxing Will Have to Clean Up

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — "Boxing will have to clean up its own affairs the way baseball did," Jack Dempsey told an interviewer Tuesday.

It might be better off with some sort of national czar or commission, but since that's unlikely, it must take care of its own police work.

The former heavyweight champion said he thinks the severity of good fighters is due to the disappearance of small neighborhood fight clubs.

Gonzales Leads in Pro Tennis Play

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Pancho Gonzales today led the pro tennis caravan on its way to Los Angeles where Jack Kramer's masters tournament opens Saturday. Gonzales is the favorite after his 5-1700 sweep in the Tournament of Champions.

Despite Tuesday night's 13-15, 6-4 loss to Australian Lew Hoad, Gonzales won $9,000 for money in the singles, another $750 in sharing the doubles crown with Australian Ken Rosewall and an extra $1,000 in "appearance money" from promoter Kramer in an off-court agreement.

Kenny Lane Sneaks Fight With Brown

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Kenny Lane, the No. 1 contender from Muskegon, Mich., was in Houston today to sign for a long-sought title match with lightweight champion Joe Brown.

The fight is due to be held in the Sam Houston Coliseum here July 23, although Lou Visconti, Brown's manager, indicated a last minute check would be made with a Dallas group.

Lane and his manager, Jack Kenna, arrived Tuesday.

"Jack wants me to check with the Dallas people again before we do anything here," Visconti said.

Brown defended his title here May 7 with an eighth round technical knockout over Ralph Dupar of New Orleans.

Casey Will Have to Use Ryne Duren

CHICAGO (AP) — Casey Stengel, New York Yankee manager who will lead the American League All-Stars against the National League's next month, declines to disclose any of his selections.

But when the name of Yankee relief pitcher Ryne Duren was suggested, Stengel said:

"I'd have to be crazy not to pick him."

A Comiskey Park crowd of 27,845 would have to agree with Stengel after watching the 29-year-old right-hander save a 6-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox Tuesday night.

Duren came on to relieve Bob Turley in the seventh inning with two on and one out. The Yankees led 6-2 but Stengel was taking no chances. Duren struck out the first man he faced and then got the text on an infield bouncer. He struck out the side in the eighth.

Collegiate Stars Start Tennis Meet

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (AP) — Smooth swinging Ab Justice of Oklahoma State is leading the race for medalist honors but the qualifying picture remained clouded today at the National Collegiate Golf Championship.

Entering the third and final day of qualifying at Williams College only one third of the entries has completed the required 36 holes.

The other players will be butting over the 6,330-yard Taconic Club course today for one of the 64 low scores which will entitle them to move on to match play.

So far, Justice heads the list with a 139 after carding a 3-d par 68 on his second round.

The recent winner of the Big Eight Conference title is followed by Al Geiberger of Southern California with a 141. Tied with 142s are Tommy Aaron of Florida, Jim Hickey of Houston and Art Fall of Oklahoma State.

Duren came on to relieve Bob Turley in the seventh inning with two on and one out. The Yankees led 6-2 but Stengel was taking no chances. Duren struck out the first man he faced and then got the text on an infield bouncer. He struck out the side in the eighth.

Bradley Lumber Deal May Run $20 Millions

WARREN, Ark. (AP) — The 26 million dollar sale of Bradley Lumber Co. of Warren to Potlatch Forests, Inc. of Lovington, Idaho, is being negotiated, it was reported yesterday.

A formal announcement of the sale is expected Friday.

Bradley has a large mill here which employs about 1,000 workers. The firm owns some 250,000 acres in nine south Arkansas counties.

Potlatch, a Delaware corporation founded in 1927, bought Southern Lumber Co. at Warren nearly two years ago and now operates it as the Southern Lumber Co. Division of Potlatch Forests.

The Potlatch firm is the world's second largest user of industrial wood. It owns about 550,000 acres of timber land in Idaho and Washington in addition to the 140,000 acres it acquired in the merger with Southern.

Officials of Potlatch have not decided whether to combine the office forces of the two Warren operations after the Bradley sale is completed.

The Potlatch name is derived from an Indian tribe of the Pacific Northwest.

Bradley Lumber Co. was founded about 1900 by R. W. Fullerton and his brother, S. Baker Fullerton. The former was president of the company until his death several years later and his brother has headed the company since that time.

Members of the Fullerton family hold nearly all of the 4,000 shares of Bradley's stock which will be sold to Potlatch for $5.00 per share.

Bradley manufactures pine dimension lumber, hardwood floor, furniture and furniture stock. In 1948, it produced 11,000,000 feet of lumber.

When the plant was built, it was considered one of the most modern in the South.

JACKSONVILLE, Ark. (AP) — A Jacksonville farmer has reported the first killing of a head of cattle in his pasture during an electrical storm last Friday.

TOWN TAMER

By FRANK GRUBER

THE STORY: Word has spread through Great Plains that the famous Marshal Tom Rosser has hit hung up his guns, and has come to the frontier town. Tom's mission is twofold. He has been hired by the railroad to tame the town, and he seeks personal vengeance for the death of his sweet-heart.

Chapter VIII

A poker game, with five players, was going on in the Pleasure Palace. Rosser stopped at the bar. "Mr. Hodder here," he said. "That's Charlie there, fellow with the fancy vest." Rosser walked to the poker game. He was within two steps of it when he came to an abrupt halt. One of the players was Guy Tavenner!

Even as he stopped, Tavenner's eyes met his. "I know you," Tavenner said. "I never forget a face."

"St. Paul," Rosser said evenly. "Yeah," Tavenner cut in quickly.

Hodder, the man with the fancy vest, threw out a hand. "Whoa," Tavenner, hold everything! You want to fight, wait until after the game." He smiled at Rosser. "Or maybe you'd rather fight it out with aces and full houses."

"I really came over to see you, Mr. Hodder."

"Then sit down."

Rosser pulled out a chair and seated himself at the table. He brought out his entire cash resources, a crumpled $10 bill, two gold half eagles and a silver dollar.

"That's all you got?" sneered Tavenner.

"It's more than you had when you quit the game the last time we played poker."

"I've got more now. I'll cut you high card for that."

Rosser took out the deed to Section 88. He handed it to Hodder. "How much will you lend me on this?"

Hodder looked curiously at Rosser, then took the deed. His eyes widened as he glanced at it. Then he folded the document and handed it back to Rosser.

"Whatever you say."

Rosser turned back to Guy Tavenner. "Put up $1,000."

Tavenner said sulkily, "I haven't got a thousand."

"Then how about three hundred? Isn't that the amount you beat the St. Paul hotel out of?" Tavenner bared his teeth. He counted out money, leaving a small sheaf of bills and some sil-

There was a woman at the desk, talking to the manager. Rosser's eyes flicked to her as he passed. He went three steps beyond, then stopped. He turned just as Susan Tavenner came away from the desk.

"Mrs. Tavenner!" Rosser exclaimed.

She recognized him, but she said, "I don't believe..."

"St. Paul."

Her eyes clouded. Her mouth opened to say something, then she changed her mind and nodded coolly and walked toward the door.

In St. Paul he had seen her in the most embarrassing moments of her life. He had been present when the hotel manager had evicted her, after her husband had deserted her.

Chapter IX

Rosser stopped before a little lunchroom, called Montana Eats. The place had a lunch counter, with eight stools and enough room for three tables. It was about half filled with customers. A Chinese cook could be seen through the opening that led into the kitchen. A handsome woman of about 30 was behind the counter.

She came up as Rosser took a stool. "Stew, beef stew, steak and beef stew," she said. "Coffee, tea or coffee?"

"Which do you recommend?"

"Neither," the woman retorted. "The beef's tough and two days old, but it's the best there is, and you look like you've got a healthy set of teeth. Better have black coffee, the milk's turning sour."

"I'll leave it to you."

"Then it's the beef stew." She went to the opening into the kitchen and gave the order. She turned, looked back along the counter.

"Don't I know you?"

"Ogallala," Rosser said.

She winced. "You were the town marshal. Tom Rosser." A cloud came over her features. "Nine years ago, no, let's face it, 11 years ago, I was 17 years old."

"You were a very pretty girl," Rosser said, then added quickly, "you've improved."

"Improved?" "I've spent 11 years going from town to town."

"You own this place?"

"It isn't much, but what there is, I own. Every stick, every plate and saucer." She cocked her head to one side. "My name is Mary Donley. That's my real name."

A man who was easily six feet four, weighing in the neighborhood of 240, got up from one of the tables and came forward. His face looked as if it had once encountered the kick of a horse.

He said, "I heard your name, Rosser."

Rosser half turned, looked over his shoulder. "Yes?"

"This Akins... he says I've lost my nerve? Is that it?"

"He was just talking."

"But that's the gist of it?"

"I think he talks too much for a fighting man." He grimaced. "So does Honsinger, for that matter. But Honsinger's got a record."

"Parker," said Rosser wearily. "I've seen all of the fancy gun boys. I met John Wesley Hardin, 'way back in '71. I watched Wild Bill Hickok dot 'I's in a sign 100 feet away. I even knew Jacob Bartles, who could shoot rings around Wild Bill. Johnny Honsinger's no better than any of those chaps."

"Probably not as good. But Wild Bill's dead."

"Killed by a man nobody ever

Show Tailored to Fit the Sponsor

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—On a recent television thriller, the victim fled his car by stove gas. The turn of events came as a great surprise to the author of the show who had painstakingly figured out murder by means of a live electric wire.

As it happened, the rewrite of that portion of plot was no reflection on the writer's ingenuity. It was just that the sponsor of the show happens to be the manufacturer of electric household devices.

In the planning of every sponsored live television show there is some responsible soul, employed by an interested advertising agency, who is constantly on the lookout for untoward situations.

"You are so accustomed to checking scripts against clients' products that you don't even think much about it," says one agency program supervisor. "It's a built-in protection."

Thus some interesting changes and arrangements are made. In one show, it was necessary to show a number of closeups of a fobber's getaway car, so close that it would be easy to identify the make of vehicle. The interested advertising agency had clients who manufacture automobiles, even though they were not sponsors of that particular show. The getaway car was chosen very carefully; a four-year-old model of a car handled by a rival agency. The theory was that a nice car is used by nice people.

It is perfectly all right to hit a comedian in the face with a pie on a program sponsored by a pharmaceutical house selling pills, all other conditions being complied with. It is strictly banned however, in shows sponsored by a big food specialty manufacturer, whose products include pie filling, mixes and a pie crust mix. When pies are shown on their time, they want them taken seriously.

Beer manufacturers don't like drunk scenes; linoleum manufacturers don't like shots of people slipping; airplane people hate plane crash dramas and so it goes all the way down the line.

The people who watch for these things also have the job of seeing that clients' products are used whenever possible. When a kitchen equipment manufacturer's show has a scene in the kitchen, it is carefully decked out in the latest examples of the sponsor's product. One TV-wise manufacturer has on hand examples of its obsolete models so that, if the scene is laid in 1935, its own product can still be correctly shown.

"When it is feasible, too, we suggest that the scene use the product of other agency clients as long as they have to use some prop," said one advertising executive. "As long as they have to show a bottle of a soft drink, or a typewriter, for instance, they might just as well show the one we handle. Directors and producers are nice about it; we give them the prop free and they like to save money."

Jury Declares James Hoffa Is Innocent

NEW YORK (AP)—Teamsters President James R. Hoffa and two co-defendants were acquitted Monday night of charges that they conspired to wiretap the union's Detroit headquarters.

A federal jury of eight men and four women deliberated seven hours before returning the verdict.

The defendants with Hoffa were Owen B. Brennan, president of Detroit Teamsters Local 337, and Bernard Spindel, a professional wiretapper.

Conviction could have brought a maximum sentence of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

A previous trial ended in a hung jury.

The government contended the trio illegally conspired here to install wiretaps in the Detroit headquarters in 1933 so Hoffa could eavesdrop on union subordinates.

Hoffa allegedly wanted to know what the subordinates might tell to U.S. Senate investigators or a grand jury in Detroit during investigations of the Teamsters Union.

The defense denied installing any wiretaps, but conceded installing other eavesdropping equipment in the union's offices.

During the trial, government witnesses testified that Hoffa was in Detroit July 9, 1933, where the operation of the wiretaps allegedly was explained to him.

The defense offered evidence that Hoffa was in Seattle that day in connection with a union conference.

Hoffa is still under indictment here on five counts of perjury, growing out of testimony he gave to the grand jury that indicted him on wiretap charges.

In 1909, total timber cut in Arkansas was 2,111,000,000 board feet, and the state ranked fifth in the nation in timber output.

I really used my head today

I stopped waiting...bought a new Plymouth...and man, what I saved!

Sometimes it's smart to wait...and sometimes it isn't! Take me. I was putting off buying that new car we needed. Then I dropped in at my Plymouth dealer's, just to look things over. It was the most profitable visit of my life.

I found I could get a price on a Plymouth a whole lot lower than I believed possible. PLUS a trade-in offer on my old car so high that I made 'em say it twice!

I saved a clean $140 on the Plymouth ride alone. That's famous Torson-Aire Ride. It's standard on all Plymouths...but you have to pay up to $140 extra for the top ride of the other two leading cars in the low-price field.

And Plymouth proved it can save me gas money by winning the 1938 Mobilgas Economy Run. (There's a brand-new Fuel-Saver Choke that makes your gas buck go a whole lot further!) It proved it will save me still more money at trade-in time, with Silver Dart Styling that will look new and bring more years from now!

Any way you look at it, here's a beauty that's a money-saver, too. I'm a proud guy right now...and a whole lot of money ahead! See your Plymouth dealer.
